

OHIO FLOOD HORROR GROWS; FLAMES SWEEP STRICKEN DAYTON; GIANT RESERVOIR THREATENS TO BREAK; DISASTER AT SHARON.

2,500 PERISHED IN THE DAYTON DISASTER SAYS AN EYE WITNESS

Staff Correspondent of United Press Tells Scenes of Horror.

BIG RESERVOIR STILL HOLDS

Report That Largest Artificial Body of Water in World Will Break is Found False; Grand Reservoir is Holding, But It May Yet Burst.

United Press Telegram.

COLUMBUS, O., March 27.—A special story by Staff Correspondent Charles H. Vanhook of the United Press, who has gone farther north in Dayton than any other man, has been received here. Vanhook returned from the flood district today, completely unimpressed by what he saw and heard. His story, as dictated over the telephone, follows:

I hope my eyes will never be punished again with the sights inflicted upon them last night and early today. The horror of the Dayton disaster cannot be exaggerated. I should say 2,500 would be nearer correct.

We went to the corner of Third and Saint Clair street, and beyond. Twice our boat was struck by whirling human bodies, which spun like tops on a spindle. Once I touched the head of a woman and again the bearded face of a man.

We went to the corner of Third and Saint Clair street, and beyond. Twice our boat was struck by whirling human bodies, which spun like tops on a spindle. Once I touched the head of a woman and again the bearded face of a man.

We heard the cries of people who must have been a black away. Some of these came from the direction of the Beckel House. The entire city is in danger of destruction by fire unless it can be put out.

We could do nothing more when we were so rowed to the Adams wharf house. There we were able to rescue five. Every refuge who was at the time threatened by fire. Because of the current we could not get near the windows. The women leaped into the water and we pulled them into the boat.

We then rowed down Clinton street and there got two girls out who had been standing waist deep in water for eight hours. One of them died on the way to the hospital.

The 500 coffins ordered for the dead will not be enough. Fourty the number. Every refuge who was at the time threatened by fire. Because of the current we could not get near the windows. The women leaped into the water and we pulled them into the boat.

The fire and flood have taken 1,000 persons in the last milling plant. Fire is approaching the city. The fire is approaching the city. The fire is approaching the city.

"There are 1,000 people in that plant," said Sanford. "If the fire reaches them there is no hope. As it is they have nothing to eat and are suffering from cold."

Many firemen were drowned this morning while still continuing to fight. Several of the boats overturned, drowning the firemen and the refugees. Women and children first is the slogan.

DAYTON, O.—The business section of flood-stricken Dayton is on fire and a biting blizzard is sweeping the flames in the direction of the camps where 50,000 refugees have sought shelter. The fire began yesterday at the corner of Third and Saint Clair streets and two blocks were destroyed. The fire then spread east, west, north and south, as the wind veered. The blizzard has added to the horror of the fire, flood and famine. Thousands of homeless men, women and children are facing death from fire, death from drowning or death from starvation. The one chance in favor of the victims is rescue within the day.

Edward Huxley, a politician who knows Dayton better than any other man, estimates the dead at not more than 2,000, and says 500 may cover the toll. It is likely that another 500 have perished at West Carrollton, which seems to have been wiped out, and at Miamiburg, Frankford and Middletown.

It is believed that the Beckel House, the second largest hotel in Dayton, has been destroyed by fire. There were 100 persons marooned in the building, reports state.

The water is still continuing to rise, and is slowly encroaching other portions of the city. The sections affected thus far have been mostly the homes of workers.

Seven bodies were recovered from the river this morning. Several others were seen floating on the top of the stream, but efforts to reach them proved unavailing.

A list of the dead in the stricken districts, as compiled this morning, follows.

Dayton, Ohio, 500 to 3,000.
Columbus, Ohio, 100.
Zionsville, Ohio, 300.
Carrolltown, Ohio, and Miami Valley, possibly as many as in Dayton.
Freemont, 12.
Wheaton, 2.
Dennison, 2.
Delaware, 2.
Lewistown, 50 to 300.
Akron, 4.
Moundsville, 4.
Sharon, 7 to 60.
Pittsburg, 1.
Logansport, 35.
Peru, 200.

COLUMBUS.—Trunk telephone messages from Saint Mary's to various Ohio and Indiana points today telling of the breaking of the Grand reservoir, the largest artificial body of water in the world, were found to be premature.

The east wall shows signs of giving way but guards allowed no one to escape and it was this that caused the panic. Workmen have been laboring on the reservoir for hours and at noon declared it safe for the present.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Reports that the Grand reservoir has broken reached here this morning, and the worst is feared. The Wabash river, which will have to carry the surplus water from the broken dam was at the danger stage last night, with its banks overflowing. It is feared that hundreds of deaths will result. Peru, Ind., this morning is buried beneath 20 feet of water.

WHEELING, W. Va.—Half of Wheeling is under water and it is estimated that the whole city will be submerged later today. The river has already reached a 47-foot stage and it is expected to reach 55 feet today.

CLEVELAND.—A blizzard put out telephone and telegraph connection with Dayton and cities to the south for several hours today.

SCOTSDALE PERSONS FEAR FOR SAFETY OF FRIENDS

Are Unable to Get Word From Those Who Are in the Stricken Flood

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, March 27.—There has been a night of anxiety, with no relief this forenoon, to those who have friends and relatives in the flood and fire-stricken cities of Ohio and Indiana. Thus far no communication has been established with anyone in the area that is suffering from cold today, as well as the flood and the fire that have broken out, and with thirst and hunger adding to the horrors.

Dayton has several people from here. Mrs. C. C. Kester, a niece of Congressman A. L. Kester, and Albert B. Kester, of Dayton, are in Dayton. It is believed that Mrs. Kester's sister, Mrs. J. S. Kester, is in Dayton. Mrs. Kester is a sister of the Rev. Harry P. Shupe, a brother of David W. Shupe, lives in Dayton, and is editor of The Watchword, a United Brethren publication.

Rev. Dr. W. R. Funk, publisher for the United Brethren Church, and the big publishing plant of the denomination is there.

J. Harvey Laker's brother, James Addison Laker, recently of this place, lives at Riverdale. It was reported yesterday that the school building at that place was washed away. James W. Sherrick, a brother from here, and Lehigh Sherrick, another brother at Kentville, are preparing to go to Middletown.

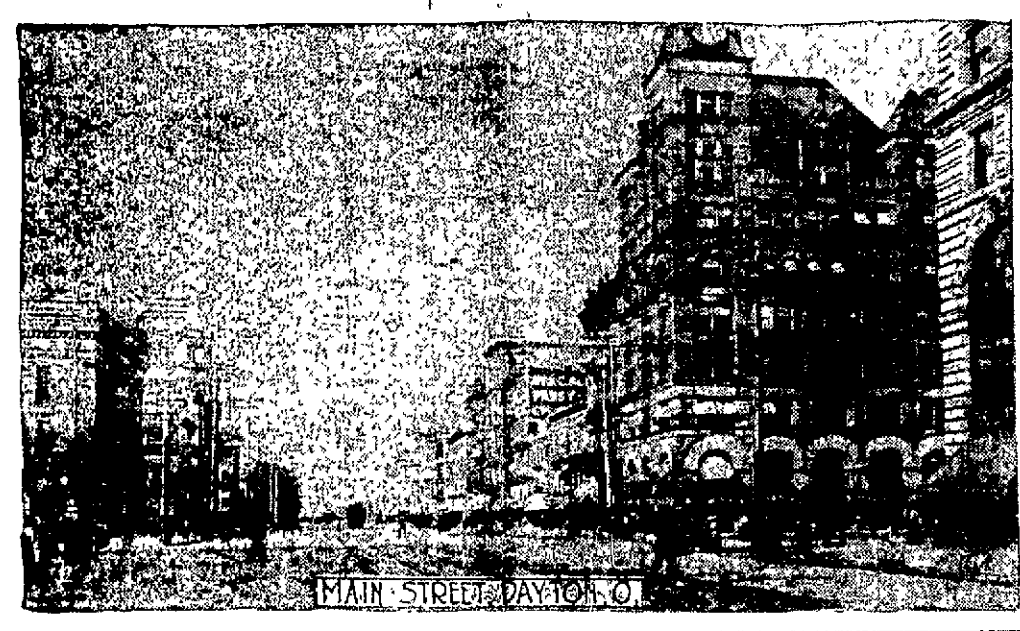

Albert Getzenhiner's family lives at Piquette, Ohio, where many persons are reported lost, and he has heard nothing from his folks.

Miss Daisy Mary Smith, formerly librarian of the Scottsdale library, is at Columbus, where she is doing library work for the State. Flood waters from the Selma and Olentangy rivers are wrenching the city, and it is reported the scene of a wild panic.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Baldwin fear for the safety of his wife's relatives in Dayton. Mrs. Baldwin is a sister of Mrs. J. D. Lowry, and sister, Mrs. Merritt Griffith, live in cottages that would be in the danger zone.

Mrs. Baldwin also has two sisters living up at Lima. Mrs. Clarence Mangster and Mrs. P. Yant.

Miss Frances Barnhart, Carl and Earl Gilbert, Miss Jessie Reed, Miss Ruth Browning and John Van Horn, Allegheny College students, are home for Easter vacation. Meadville is in the throes of a flood and the people here are glad that they are in Scottsdale.

COKE PLANTS ARE IDLE BECAUSE OF WESTERN FLOODS

Region Partially Suspends Because Railroads Decline Shipments.

THREE SYSTEMS ARE CRIPPLED

Operators Shipping North and East Not Affected, but Bulk of the Coke Is Sent to Western Points; Scottsdale Mills Have Only Short Day Supply.

Hundreds of men are idle in the coke region today because of the suspension of the H. C. Frick Coke Company's plants. The railroads have declined to accept shipments of coke for points west of Pittsburgh and until traffic is resumed the region will be crippled. All of the merchant operators with the exception of one are operating today but it was stated that they would probably be forced to suspend tomorrow. Operators shipping north or east are not affected by the embargo which has been placed on western shipments.

At the offices of the H. C. Frick Coke Company it was said that the proof will be furnished last tonight. On today, but this depends upon the railroads. Traffic officials of the three lines which handle the coke trade are far from optimistic and it is feared that it may be days before shipments are again accepted, and possibly weeks before normal conditions are restored.

If the coke cannot be moved proof will be furnished last tonight. On today, but this depends upon the railroads. Traffic officials of the three lines which handle the coke trade are far from optimistic and it is feared that it may be days before shipments are again accepted, and possibly weeks before normal conditions are restored.

The only mill making bars that is still in operation is the Edgar Thompson and it is feared that the high water of the Pittsburgh district may force it to suspend.

ASH F. WILLIAMS DEAD

Republican County Chairman Is a Victim of Pneumonia.

Amherst F. Williams, Republican County Chairman in 1911 and former Deputy County Controller, died last evening at Uniontown following an illness of several months. For 48 hours prior to his death his condition was such that hopes for recovery were abandoned.

Mr. Williams was one of the best known young men in the county. He was raised in Springhill township. Six years ago he came to Uniontown as clerk in the Commissioner's office and had been employed in various capacities at the court house until last fall when he took the position with the Westinghouse Company in Pittsburg. He was unmarried.

Killed in Mine.

Harry Porter of Mount Pleasant was killed in the W. J. Rainey mines at Acme yesterday by a fall of slate. He is survived by his widow and six children. He is 39 years old.

Company D to Drill.

Company D, Tenth Regiment, will meet for drill this evening.

WANT BETTER SERVICE

West Side Residents Ask Free Delivery of Mail.

Kurtz's attempt to secure free delivery service for residents of the Davidson and Newmyer addition, South Side, property owners residing above Ninth street, West Side, desire to secure the same service. Citizens living on Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth streets have never enjoyed the advantages of the service because they have thus far failed to meet the requirements of the Postoffice Department.

Postmaster Kurtz declared that before the Postal Inspector would permit carriers to traverse that section, the residents would have to lay continuous sidewalks in front of their properties, and number their houses.

EXPLOSION IN SHOP

Three Men Are Injured but All Will Recover.

As the result of an explosion at the Baltimore & Ohio yards this morning about 12:15 o'clock three employees suffered injury. The injured are Harry Fries, aged 18, son of Emma Fries, burned about the neck face, hand and arm. James Barnhart, aged 44 years and married, of Connellsville, burned over the head, face and neck. Emil Rupe, aged 25, an Italian, slightly burned.

All three of the injured were removed to the Cottage State Hospital. Their conditions are not serious. While filling a tank that had contained gasoline, with water, one of the men held a lantern into the tank to examine it. The explosion followed.

DEFENDANT PAYS.

Settles Case When Accused of Assault.

Charged with assault and battery John Carmack was given a hearing last evening before Judge P. M. D. McIntire of the West Side. The information was made by Louis Cohen who alleged that following some trouble on Main street Carmack followed him to the Youngloughy bridge where after choking him he threatened to kill him and throw him into the river.

The case was settled by the defendant paying the costs and making a settlement with Cohen.

RAILROADS SUSPEND WESTERN TRAFFIC; SYSTEMS TIED UP

Western Maryland and Baltimore & Ohio Have Trouble East.

LANDSLIDES CAUSE SOME DELAY

Blockade at Indian Creek Threatened to Put Connellsville Division Out of Business But It Is Cleared and Traffic Resumed; Trains Detoured.

Indians are busy adjusting their schedules to meet the conditions caused by the flood. Train service has been rearranged and much of it abandoned to western points, until the waters recede. For a time Connellsville was threatened with being cut off from the east over the Baltimore & Ohio and Western Maryland railroads today. A landslide near Indian Creek blocked both tracks for several hours but it was possible to get through with a slight delay.

The Western Maryland is blocked by a landslide near Greene Junction and is sending its trains over the Baltimore & Ohio tracks. A huge boulder fell on the tracks yesterday afternoon and it has not yet been removed.

Before the blockade of the Western Maryland tracks at Bluestown was discovered an ex-hauler freight train, carrying a load of lumber, was on its way to the Bluestown run, into the debris. No one was injured, but the engine and four cars were derailed.

The Baltimore & Ohio announced the resumption of trains today. Possession of the Ohio River and Wheeling and Kanawha divisions have been abandoned. Effective this morning and continuing until further notice, trains will be run as follows:

No. 7 and 8 will run from Grafton to Wheeling only. Nos. 11 and 12 will run between New York and Pittsburg. No. 13 will run between Baltimore and Pittsburg. No. 15 will run from Pittsburg to New York only. Nos. 11 and 16 will run between Baltimore and Wheeling and from Baltimore to Pittsburg only. Nos. 5 and 6 will run between New York and Chicago.

Traffic west of Pittsburg has virtually been abandoned. The Lake Erie & Michigan Southern railroad has the only line in operation from Cleveland to Chicago and that road has announced that it will handle only three westward and two eastward trains daily for the Pennsylvania, and one each way for the Baltimore & Ohio, which are able to reach Cleveland over the Pennsylvania lines.

Other railroads are furnishing only suburban service to the edge of the flood zone. Lakesburg can be reached over the Baltimore & Ohio by way of Connellsville and Fairmont. Freight service is no longer being attempted. The few times the roads are attempting to move carry passengers only.

Mail service to and from the west is demoralized. Pittsburg faces a serious milk famine because the bulk of its supply comes from the flooded section of Ohio. Shipments of milk are held up all along the line because the trains cannot be met.

MRS. BAMFORD'S FUNERAL

Salvation Army Worker Will Be Buried Tomorrow.

The body of Mrs. Sarah T. Bamford arrived here this morning from Pittsburg and was removed to the parlors of Funeral Director C. C. Mitchell, where it will be kept until tomorrow when it will be taken to the family residence on York avenue from which place the funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services will be held at 2:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church.

Col. William Evans of Cleveland, O., assisted by Major Samuel Withers of Pittsburg, will officiate. It will be a Salvation Army funeral and all friends of Mrs. Bamford are invited. Interment in Hill Grove Cemetery.

DAUGHTER IN DAYTON.

J. H. Pinkney of Mill Run, Pa., Fearful of Student.

J. H. Pinkney of Mill Run, is alarmed over the safety of his daughter, Miss L. Corn Pinkney, a student in the United Brethren Seminary, Dayton, O. Since the floods began, he has been unable to get any word from Dayton, although he has endeavored to send several telegrams to that city.

Miss Pinkney lived in this section for several years. Recently she has been teaching school. She was engaged as a teacher in the Westfield College, Westfield, Ill., last year, leaving there to enter the United Brethren College at Dayton to finish her education.

Hospital Case.

Peter Tusha, aged 42 years, was admitted to the Cottage State Hospital last evening for treatment of a fractured pelvis suffered from an accident with which he met in the W. J. Rainey mines at Elm Grove. Mrs. Amanda Tusha of Youngwood, underwent an operation this morning.

RELIEF FUND FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS STARTED HERE

Burgess Evans or Chamber of Commerce Will Receive Contributions for Stricken.

Connellsville persons will have the opportunity to contribute towards the Ohio flood relief fund. Both Burgess J. L. Evans and the Chamber of Commerce are accepting funds. Alfred Kolback was the first to come to the front with an offer to start the fund and to that end Burgess J. L. Evans was approached. The Burgess agreed to accept contributions of cash for the sufferers and see that they are forwarded to the proper parties.

Later in the day the Chamber of Commerce issued an appeal for cash to aid the relief work. The following statement was issued by Secretary L. A. Schooley.

"Whereas in the course of human events, the States of Ohio and Indiana and to a lesser extent adjoining States, and more particularly the cities of Dayton, Piquette, Delaware, Middletown, Ohio, Peru, Indianapolis, Indiana, and many other points have been visited by very destructive floods, resulting in great loss of life and property, thereby entailing much suffering and great deprivation, and still further endangering the lives of those remaining in the great flood-stricken areas, by reason of the destruction of practically all things necessary to support the lives of the victims of this great disaster and in the belief that those who give quickly gives a hundred-fold and more, and with a full realization of the very great need for quickly rendering aid to the many men, women and children now in distress in our neighboring States to the west.

"Whereas, in the name of the Chamber of Commerce of Connellsville and by order of President F. E. Mackrell of this organization, and with the consent and approval of the Board of Directors, a most worthy appeal is made to the citizens of Connellsville and adjacent territory, and elsewhere, for cash contributions to be used for the relief of those now in distress and all of whom are greatly in need of that warm friendly and brotherly aid that springs from a spontaneous recognition of the needs of the hour.

"Contributions in cash or check may be forwarded to President F. E. Mackrell, care of the Chamber of Commerce, or to the Chamber of Commerce, First National Bank Building and as quickly as circumstances will permit, all monies received will be forwarded by cashiers' draft or otherwise to the properly constituted authorities for the relief of those now in distress."

FIFTY LOSE LIVES NEAR SHARON AS BIG DAM BREAKS IS WILD RUMOR

Communication Has Been Destroyed and No Word is Heard.

FRIGHTFUL HAVOC IS REPORTED

Allegheny River Continues to Rise; Much Damage is Reported from Many Pennsylvania Towns; Waters are Receding in Some Sections.

United Press Telegram.

PITTSBURGH, March 27.—An unconfirmed report from Sharon, Pa., received here this morning, said that 50 lives were lost in the Shenango valley when a large dam above Sharon broke. No additional reports have been received, and confirmation of the report has not been possible. Later reports were to effect that 20 had perished. From Sharon comes news that seven is nearer correct.

The Allegheny river is continuing to rise rapidly and Weather Forecaster Pennywit says that it will reach the 31 foot stage before night.

The Allegheny river reached a stage of 28.3 feet at 8:30 this morning and Weather Forecaster Henry Pennywit expressed belief that the crest would be reached at 31 feet.

MEADVILLE, Pa.—This city is slowly recovering from the effects of the flood. The electric lighting system is again in operation.

GREENSBURG.—Troop A of the State Constabulary is preparing to leave for the Allegheny river to protect flood sufferers and aid in relief work.

TIONESTA, Pa.—This city is under water and there is severe suffering.

OIL CITY, Pa.—Oil City is under martial law. The report of a cloud-burst near here caused a panic. It was apparently without foundation.

ALTOONA, Pa.—The Pennsylvania railroad sent a relief train from here with carpenters and builders for work in the Ohio flood district. A portable electric lighting plant is carried on order that the force may work night and day.

FRANKLIN, Pa.—The water here was stationary from 10 o'clock last night until 3 this morning. It then began to rise again. Floods are rising rapidly and the electric light plant will soon be forced to suspend.

SHARON, Pa.—Great damage was wrought here by floods. Both newspapers have suspended and the plant of the Sharon Herald was destroyed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Although the flood waters are considerably lower today there is severe suffering along the Wabash valley. Refugees have been without food and drinking water for days. A relief train left here for Peru and 60 boats are carrying supplies over the intervening stretch of water which cuts off the 3,000 sufferers. Kokomo, Logansport and Lafayette are reported to be in a terrible plight, with no relief in sight. Several persons have been driven insane from lack of water and provisions.

NO WORD OF RELATIVES

Mrs. J. L. Gilmore Feels for Their Safety.

Mrs. J. L. Gilmore of East Fairview avenue has a number of relatives in Dayton, O. from whom no word has been received since the flood. Her brother, C. H. Scott, resides about a square from the station. She has two nephews, Dr. W. R. Scott and Ross, the latter being connected with a newspaper in Dayton. Mr. and Mrs. Gaddis also has relatives located there.

Mrs. Gilmore accompanied by her son T. Scott Gilmore, of Smithfield, was attending the funeral of the former's sister-in-law, Mrs. J. B. Scott, at Hamilton, O., and left Dayton Monday morning the flood occurred. They arrived home Tuesday at noon.

INSPECT ISABELLA ROAD.

Property Owners Want Paving Laid on That Thoroughfare.

SOCIETY.

Bridge and Five Hundred.
Yellow and white appointments standout of Easter, were handsomely carried out at a large and beautifully arranged card party at which Mrs.
Claude D. Anderson was hostess yesterday afternoon at her home, 18 Eighty street, Greenwood. Seventy guests were in attendance. The decorations were unusually attractive, baskets of yellow and white tulips intermingled with green and white ferns, and potted Easter flowers were artistically arranged in all the rooms. The handles of the baskets were embellished with large bows of white ma-line, adding much to the effect. A touch of green was introduced by an effective arrangement of ferns. Eight-teen tables were called into play. The bridge tables were arranged in the reception room and living room and the five hundred tables in the dining room. The bridge tables were adorned with chicken heads and the five hundred tables with rabbits. The head prize at bridge was won by Mrs.
O. R. Altman and the consolation prize by Mrs. A. D. Solomon. Miss Kitty McCall captured the five hundred prize. The consolation prize was awarded Mrs. George Hoover of Fairbanks. The same color scheme prevailed in the luncheon served at the close of the games. On the cakes were mounted small chicks.

The aides were Mrs. E. C. Hughes, Mrs. T. S. McKee, Mrs. G. H. Anderson and Mrs. J. S. Lauchry. The out-dressed guests were Mrs. O. R. Altman,

TEACHER IS DEAD

Miss Eva Gray is a Victim of Pneumonia.
Miss Eva Althea Gray, 27 years old, teacher of Room No. 2 at Trotter, died last night at midnight at her home on East Fayette street following a second attack of pneumonia. She had taught only three weeks of the term when she contracted pneumonia.
She resumed her teaching after the holidays and two weeks ago suffered an attack of bronchitis. A week ago pneumonia developed and resulted in pneumonia. Funeral from the family residence Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. R. C. Wolf, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church conducting. Interment in Hill Grove cemetery.

Miss Gray was born in Marshall county, West Virginia, and was a daughter of Francis H. Gray, deceased, and Mrs. Martha A. Gray. The family moved from West Virginia to Vanderbilt, where Miss Gray was graduated from the Vanderbilt High School. She taught her first term at the Hughes school and was on her fourth term at Trotter when she died.
She also taught at Sade and Adelaide. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church and taught a Sunday school class composed of young ladies.

In addition to her mother she survived by one sister, Miss Althea
Gray, at home, and two brothers,
Almon, of Rust City, Va., and Albert, at home. She resided at Vanderbilt for about twelve years and came to Connellsville about six years ago.

WILSON MAKES ARREST

Turner Fined for Cruelty to Animals.
Will Sue Former Owner.
An interesting hearing will be held before Judge Stueckenroth this afternoon when John Wilson will be arrested on the charge of selling a horse to Henry Bauer, a Springfield township farmer, under false pretext.

Bauer drove into town with the animal attached to a buggy yesterday afternoon, and as soon as he appeared on Pittsburg street he was arrested by Humane Officer Charles Wilson and held before Justice of the Peace Lawrence Donegan on the charge of cruelty to animals.

The horse was afflicted with the heaves and was troubled with several other ailments. The only remedy the Humane Officer could recommend for it was a bullet.

After Squire Donegan fined Bauer
$10 and costs, the farmer swore out a warrant before Squire Billwagon for the arrest of a landowner, John Lish, who, he said, sold him the horse for $15 under a guarantee that the animal was sound.

TUE KNOW HOW

To Feed Children and Get Good Results.
There are more nervous persons made so by undigested food lying in the stomach than the average individual would suppose.

If food is not properly digested in the stomach, it begins to ferment, set up gas and a large portion is thus converted into poison.

That's why imperfectly digested food may, and often does, cause irritation of the nerves and stupor of the mind—brain and nerves are really poisoned.

My daughter had complained for some time of a distressed feeling in the stomach, after eating, which set me thinking that her diet was not right. I was an anxious and intelligent mother.

"She had been fond of cereals, but had never tried Grape-Nuts. From reading the account of this prodigious food, it seemed reasonable to try Grape-Nuts for her case."

"The results were really wonderful.
The little brain that seemed at times unable to keep its work took on new life and vigor. Every morning, now, before going to school, she eats the crisp little morsels and is now completely and entirely well, she seems to have no more of the more distress in the stomach, nor headache, but sound and well everywhere." Name

YOUTH IS RISING.

Goos Up Nearly Two Feet Over Night.
Said Admiringly.
The Youngstown river rose nearly two feet over night and is still going up. Rains which have prevailed in this section for the better part of a week are continuing although the cold temperatures may check the mountain streams.

The rain has been accompanied by unusually high winds, usually at night.
Last night the wind blew down at evening at Bishop's restaurant and one of the billboards on the West Side.

A TALK TO CONNELLSVILLE MOTHERS ABOUT CROUP AND COLD TROUBLES

The New Treatment With Fresh Air and Antiseptic Vapors That Does Away With Injurious Internal Medicines, Plaster, Jockets, Etc.

Every mother is the doctor when it comes to treating the annoying little cold troubles that all children are heir to. The only trouble is to know what really is the best thing to do.

Some mothers keep the children in doors and make them wear chest protectors and heavy flannels. This method deprives the children of the fresh air and exercise they need and the heavy clothing keeps the pores of the skin open and really makes them catch cold more easily.

A few mothers neglect these troubles entirely and this often leads, in after life, to chronic catarrh, wheezing lungs, etc.

Most mothers keep on hand a formidable array of bottles and are usually dosing one or more of the children. This method is probably worse than the others as most cough medicines contain alcohol and some form of opium and are very injurious to the delicate stomachs of the little folks.

After all colds are simply inflammations of the lining of the air passages just like sunburn and mosquito bites are inflammation of the skin. We don't dose the stomach to cure sunburn but we have had to dose the stomach for colds because there has been no way of applying a direct application to the air passages except in the form of vapors. And while the old vapor lamps gave off the needed vapors, they required the room to be kept closed and hence kept out the all important fresh air.

Fluo tar from the south, menthol from Japan, camphor from the Isle of Formosa, and the oils of Thymol, eucalyptol, cubeb and juniper, are recognized as the best remedies for cold troubles. Druggists the world over have been seeking some cheap, convenient method of vaporizing these products without having to use the cumbersome vapor lamp.

A druggist in North Carolina discovered how to combine these products in a salve by a special process so that they were vaporized by the heat of the body when applied over the throat and chest. This patented process is the only secret about this new treatment which is known as Vicks Vaporizer and Pneumonia Salve.

Plenty of fresh air in the bedroom and a little Vicks used occasionally will keep the children free from cold troubles, no matter how much they are exposed. Croup really is relieved in 15 minutes. For all inflammation of the air passages such as catarrh, bronchitis, tonsillitis, asthma, etc., this new treatment will be found remarkably successful. Simply apply Vicks over throat and chest and cover with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the covering loose around the neck so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled.

All the leading drug stores in Connellsville are now agencies for the sale of this preparation and are giving with each sale a refund slip that is good for your money back if Vicks is not found to be far better than internal medicines.

Vicks comes in three sizes—25c, 50c and $1.00. The price is never cut. Advertisement.

NEWS OF A DAY
IN SCOTSDALE.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, March 27.—A mother and child were badly burned, the father and another child were endangered, and a house was in imminent danger of being burned down when a bottle of stove polish is said to have exploded or caught fire at the home of Albert Stoner, a well known young mill worker, living on Home-wood avenue.

It is said that Mrs. Stoner was polishing the stove from a bottle of enamel, and was using a brush. The brush caught on fire and Mrs. Stoner says that she struck the brush against the stove to put out the flames. Either the bottle nearby was knocked over or a spark entered it and the bottle exploded, enveloping the kitchen in flames, which burst from the door and windows.

Their daughters, Gladys, aged about nine, and a younger child were in the kitchen. Mr. Stoner who was in the porch, tried to extinguish the flames that caught the clothing of Gladys. The child was badly burned about the face and hands, and Mr. Stoner suffered some burns.

Mrs. Stoner put out the flames on the other child's clothing by rolling her in a rug, but herself was burned on one side of her face and hand. John Stoner, a brother of Albert Stoner, living in the next house, seeing the flames rushed in and beat them out in the kitchen by means of a heavy broom. The interior of the kitchen was much damaged, among other things the linoleum being burned off.

The police bottle bore a warning to use the polish only on a cold stove. Mrs. Stoner says that the polish had caught fire on previous occasions, but the brush was always extinguished by striking it on the stove.

AT RECEPTION.
Mr. and Mrs. J. Lester Porter were at Ruffalo attending a reception and turkey dinner given by Mrs. Porter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Lynn, for Mr. and Mrs. Elmer La Verne Palms of Denver, Colorado. Mrs. Palms, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn, was before her marriage Miss Elsie Lynn, a teacher in the Denver schools. The pair are on their way home from their wedding trip having visited Southern and Western cities.

Among those present of the family were Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Latta of Jeannette, William Lynn of Wyano, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hepler of Fayette City, Miss Ethel Lynn of Donora and Samuel of Ruffalo. The only one of the family absent was their son, Stanley Lynn of East Liverpool, Ohio.

IN FLOOD ZONE.
Uneasiness is felt here for the safety of Miss Daisy Mary Smith, formerly librarian of the Scottsdale Public Library, who is in Columbus, O., in the library there, and where thousands of people are reported to be homeless on account of flood.

SMITHFIELD.

SMITHFIELD, March 26.—After Griffin, a Nicholson township farmer, drove his team up to D. H. Dore's store at the H & O depot Tuesday, and left the horses unattended, while he went into the store, while he was in the store a shifting engine pulled up and frightened the horses when they made a hasty getaway out Washington way. As they turned into Water street at the intersection of Washington way with that street, Albert Miller, a blacksmith who has a shop at this point, stopped them. Luckily there was no one injured and but slight damage done. But it is well to remind people that drive in from the country that there is a borough ordinance with a penalty attached forbidding any one to leave a team standing unattended or unattended any of the streets of the borough.

William A. Tibbs, a Civil War veteran who is past his 80th year, and Francis, his wife, observed the first anniversary of their marriage at their home on Baxter's Ridge Tuesday.

HEADACHY, CONSTIPATED, BILIOUS, TAKE DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS"

Removes the Scum From the Tongue, Sweetens a Sour, Gassy, Bilious Stomach; Cleanses Your Liver and 30 Feet of Bowels Without Gripe or Nausea.

If headachy, bilious, dizzy, tongue coated, stomach sour and full of gas, you belch undigested food and feel sick, and miserable, it means that your liver is choked with sour bile and your thirty feet of bowels are clogged with effluvia waste matter not properly carried off. Constipation is worse than most folks believe. It means that this waste matter in the thirty feet of bowels decays into poisons, gases and acids and that these poisons are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

Most people dread physic. They think of castor oil, salts and cathartic pills. They shrink from the after effects—so they postpone the dose until they get sick; then they do this liver and bowel cleansing in a heroic way—they have a bowel washday.

OLIVER INTEREST MAY BUILD PLANT BY-PRODUCT OVENS

In the Connellsville Region if Their Natural Gas Supply Fails.

REVERSING PRESENT PRACTICE

But It Is Hoped That There May Be More Economy in Piping Gas Than in Handling Coal: Wouldn't Require a Plant of 1,000 Ovens to Do Work.

The Connellsville coke region may see the successful operation of the by-product coke oven. The Oliver & Snyder Steel Company, whose plants are on the outskirts of Uniontown and which owns an extensive acreage of Connellsville coal, long under advisement the erection of by-product ovens to recover the gas and other waste products for use in the company's mills in Pittsburgh. The proposition is only tentative and in the nature of a reserve resource. The company owns its own natural gas supply and if that should fail, it is stated, the by-product question may be taken up. It is not a new question with steel interests, but the practice has thus far been to build the ovens at the steel plant and haul the coal to the ovens. The proposition indicates that the Oliver people figure closely on coal and coke rates and do not regard the pumping of gas from Uniontown to Pittsburgh an impossible or even a serious problem.

An official of the company, in discussing the matter with a representative of The Courier said: "One thing is certain, and that is when our people decide to make a change, it will not be to the rectangular type of oven, but to the by-product. The Oliver interests control the Monacahe National Gas Company, with lines in and about Pittsburgh, and these lines would be used for conveying the gas to that point. The reason after connecting lines had been arranged for. However, the change, if it does come, is far in the future. By-product ovens are for the furnaces and not for the coke region, and our people have taken the matter up only in a casual way and not with the intention of making any change in the near future. The rumor was that the company contemplated a plant of 1,000 by-product ovens. An initial plant of this size is probably what is contemplated. The by-product plant at Gary, Ind., had been built consisting of 300 to 400 ovens each.

COKE OVEN EXPERT DIES

Dr. Frederick Schickel Dies After Long Illness.

Dr. Frederick Schickel, one of the leading authorities in by-product coke ovens in this country, died in Englewood, N. J., March 26, following an operation for appendicitis. He was a pioneer in the building of by-product coke ovens and the Otto Gas Chemical Company, which was finally merged into the German-American Gas & Coke Company.

In the early '90s he became the representative in this country of Dr. C. Otto & Company, Philadelphia, Germany, in the business of designing and building the Otto oven. Later this business became the Otto Gas Chemical Company, which was finally merged into the German-American Gas & Coke Company.

Dr. Schickel was born in Germany 22 years ago and came to this country at the age of 28. He was educated at Philadelphia, where he received a degree of Ph. D. As a chemical engineer he gained prominence from his numerous discoveries pertaining to by-product coke ovens, among the most interesting of which was the adoption of these ovens to the burning of illuminating gas. He established the first installation of this character at Boston in 1897.

Dr. Schickel was born in Germany 22 years ago and came to this country at the age of 28. He was educated at Philadelphia, where he received a degree of Ph. D. As a chemical engineer he gained prominence from his numerous discoveries pertaining to by-product coke ovens, among the most interesting of which was the adoption of these ovens to the burning of illuminating gas. He established the first installation of this character at Boston in 1897.

THE FUTURE OF STEEL ALTOGETHER FAVORABLE

But There Are Some Who Continue to Doubt: March Will Make a New High Record.

From The Weekly Courier.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will tomorrow morning review the steel situation as follows:

"There are slight irregularities in prices in a few finished steel products, but by no means enough to disturb the position of leading producers, who are making shipments at record rate and have ample specifications on hand. Prices are fairly paid on plants for shipment in three weeks, but such premiums are not as large as two or three months ago. Premiums on bars for early delivery have grown larger.

"Effective Monday, March 24th, wire products were advanced $1 a ton, making nails $1.80 a keg, base, and bringing the total advance on this movement, which started in December, 1911, up to $8 a ton. The advance was presumably made to stimulate specifying on old contracts, wire products having lately been the slowest item in the finished steel list owing to the anticipation of spring specifications by jobbers two or three months ago, induced by the mills making special arrangements.

"The agricultural implement interests have started to contract for steel bars for the new season. The leading interest is accepting contracts for the twelve-month beginning July 1st, while independents have sought to limit the contracting to six months. Turnover booked thus far is not large. It is only in the season. Other manufacturing consumers have been closing for second half bars, as otherwise they would be unable to secure desired delivery of the regular 1-40a price has been paid in all instances.

"March will make a new record for production and shipments in the steel industry, due simply to the unusually favorable weather conditions, since the steel mills have been trying to produce full outputs for five or six months.

"There has been a further but slight softening in pig iron. Bessemer is quotable at $17, Valley, and Basic at $18, representing a decline of 25 cents in Bessemer from the top point, while Valley and Basic are 10 cents higher. The East has declined 50 cents altogether. Foundry iron, on the other hand, has declined an average of $1 a ton in all markets in the past three months. The prediction is renewed that there will be an early buying movement in steel-making iron in the Central West, probably within a month, but in the country iron a general movement is not likely to occur so soon.

"The outlook for the future of the steel industry appears favorable, and as much so as at any time, but there are as many doubters as there were in January."

MAY LEAVE ALBERTA

Passage of New Farm Machinery Law Hurts Implement Men.

The Alberta Legislature has passed the farm machinery act in spite of strong protests on the part of implement manufacturers. The law provides that no covenant or condition of any agreement, written or verbal, shall be binding on the purchaser of farm machinery, provided such a covenant is in view of the circumstances of the case, unenforceable.

Notwithstanding anything in the agreement to the contrary the vendor is made responsible for all representations made by his agents during the sale and all persons conducting negotiations on behalf of the vendor are to be considered his agents.

The implement men threaten to call off their travelers and cancel contracts with local agents.

ACTIVITY IN IRON TRADE

May Being Down 50,000,000 Tons of Ore to Meet Demand.

To meet the unprecedented demand in the iron and steel trade, it is estimated that a Lake movement of 50,000,000 tons of iron ore will be needed this year. The declaration is also made that from 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons of coal will be needed at the heads of the Lakes this season. The estimate that such an enormous movement is possible is qualified by the provision that vessel accommodations can be obtained to transport such a large total.

If a 50,000,000-ton Lake movement results this year, it will exceed by about 2,500,000 tons the record Lake shipments of 1912.

Takes Position With Steel Company.

E. D. Rogers has resigned his position of district sales manager for the Cambria Steel Company at Cleveland to accept the position of General Manager of Sales of the United Steel Company at Canton, O.

CUT ON NEW LINES

At first sight this waist seems like a very simple one, but there are many features in it. First, the waist is cut in one piece, the material being straight in the back, and slanting over the shoulders in the direction shown by the checks. Then the neck is cut quite low and the inner band of the collar is cut on the bias so that there is a continuous closely fitting curve, in place of the angle that the ordinary shirtwaist shows at the joint of the collar and waist.

ACCIDENT AT WEIRTON

One Plant of Phillips Company Temporarily Closed.

The power house at the Weirton works of the Phillips Sheet & Tin Plate Company, met with an accident on Saturday. The accident occurred in the boiler room, where a boiler was being repaired. The boiler exploded, and the entire plant was closed. The accident caused considerable damage to the plant, and the repair work is expected to take several weeks.

LOWER OCEAN RATES

May Result in Reduced Prices for Foreign Ore.

Possibility of lower ocean freight rates and, therefore, lower prices for foreign iron ore is suggested by the fact that the temporary loss of the Weirton works.

EASTERN AGENCY CHANGES

Announcement is made that the firm of Potts & Wittman of Philadelphia but that N. B. Wittman will continue to act as the eastern sales agent of the Keystone Coal & Coke Company and the Lanthier-Connellsville Coal & Coke Company.

"I suppose he learned you were here," Wally laughed.

"Then you must have told him," "No, I didn't."

"Mr. Speed," Roberta's cheeks were pale and her voice trembled—"you didn't send that telegram—at all."

"Oh, but I did."

"You wanted him to get here in time to run in your place. I see it all now. You arranged it very cleverly, but you will pay the penalty."

"You surely won't tell Helen?"

"This minute! You wretched, deceitful man!"

Before he could say more, from the front of the house came the rattle of wheels, a loud "Whoa!" then Joan's voice, crying:

"Culver! Culver!" while Mrs. Keap watched at her bosom and moaned.

Her companion bolted into the house and down the hall, shouting the name of his room-mate. Out through the front door he dashed headlong, in time to behold Fresno and the two girls assisting the new arrival toward the veranda. They were exclaiming in pity, and had their arms about the athlete, for Culver Covington, Intercollegiate One-Hundred-Yard Champion, was hobbling forward upon a pair of crutches.

The yell died in Speed's throat, he felt himself grow deadly faint.

"Crippled!" he gasped, and leaned against the door for support.

CHAPTER XV.

In a daze, Speed saw his friend mount the porch painfully, in a daze, he shook his hand. Subconsciously he beheld Lawrence Glass come panting into view, throw up his hands at sight of Covington, and cry out in a strange tongue. When he regained his faculties he broke into the conversation harshly.

"What have you done to yourself?"

"I broke a toe," explained the athlete.

"You broke a toe?"

"He broke a toe!" wailed Glass, faintly.

"It's nothing but a toe, it won't hurt your running," Speed soothed eagerly upon the faintest hope.

"No, I'll be all right in a few weeks," Covington spoke carelessly, his eyes bent upon Jean Chupin.

"You've got to run to-morrow."

"What!" Covington dragged his glance away from the cheeks of his sweetheart.

"I'm sick. You'll have to."

"Don't be an idiot, Wally. I can't walk!"

Helen explained, with pride of one displaying her own handiwork: "Mr. Speed deftly broke the Flying Heart to-morrow. You are just in time to see him."

"When did you learn to box, Wally?" Covington was genuinely amazed.

"I'm not going to box. It's a foot-race. I'm training—been training ever since I arrived."

Covington Hobbling Forward on Crutches.

In his bewilderment the late-comer might have unwittingly betrayed his friend had not Joan suddenly inquired: "Where is Roberta?"

"Roberta!" Covington tripped over one of his crutches. "Roberta who?"

"Why, Roberta Keap, of course! She's chaperoning us while mother is away."

The hero of countless field-days turned pale, and seemed upon the point of hobbling back to "Nigger Mike's" backboard.

"You and she are old friends, I believe?" Helen interposed.

"Yes! Oh, yes!" Culver flashed his chin a look of dumb entreaty, but Speed was staring round-eyed into space, striving to read the future.

Helen started to fetch her just as the pallid chaperon was entering the door.

She shook hands with Covington. She observed that he was too deeply affected at sight of her to speak, and it awakened fresh misgivings in her mind.

"How do you do! I didn't know you were here!" he stammered.

"I thought it would surprise you!" Roberta smiled wally, amazed at her own self-control, then froze in her tracks as Joan announced:

"Jack will be home to-night, Culver. He'll be delighted to see you!"

J. Wallingford Speed offered a diversion by bursting into a hollow laugh. Now that the world was in league to work his own downfall, it was time some one else had a touch of suffering. To this end he inquired how the toe had come to be broken.

"I broke it in Omaha—automobile accident," Culver was fighting to master himself.

"Omaha! Did you stop in Omaha?" inquired Joan.

"A city of beautiful women," Speed reflected, audibly. "Somebody step on your foot at a dance?"

"No, of course not! I don't know anybody in Omaha! I went motor-ing."

"Joy-ride?"

"Not at all."

"Who was with you?" Miss Chupin's voice was consciously sweet.

"N—nobody I knew."

"Does that mean that you were alone?"

"Yes. I stopped off between trains to view the city, and took a 'Seeding Omaha' ride. The rap wagon upset, and—broke my toe."

"You left Chicago two days ago," said Speed accusingly.

"Of course, but—when I broke my toe I had to stay. It's a beautiful city—lots of fine buildings."

"How did you like the fall?"

"What in the world are you boys talking about?" queried Miss Blake.

"Mr. Speed seems amused at Culver's accident," Roberta gave him a stinging look. "Now we'd better let Culver go to his room and freshen up a bit. I want to talk to you, Helen, and Speed dropped at the meaning behind her words. But it was time for a general conference; events were slipping themselves too rapidly for him to cope with. Once the three were alone he lost no time in making his predicament known, the while his friend listened in amazement.

"But it is really so serious?" the latter asked, finally.

"There's a bomb-dynamite named Willie guarding me daytimes, and a pair of rascals who keep watch at my window all night. The cowboys bathe me in kerosene to toughen me, and feed me raw meat to make me wild. In every corner there lurks an assassin with orders to shoot me if I break training, everywhere I go some low-browed criminal feels my hips, pinches my legs, and asks how my wind is. I tell you, I'm going mad."

"And the worst part of it is," spoke Glass, sympathetically, "they'll bump me off first. It's a pipe."

"But, Wally, you can't run."

"Don't I know it?"

"Don't I?" seconded the trainer.

"Then why attempt the impossible? Call the race off!"

"It's too late. Don't you understand? The bets are made, and it's 'pay or play.' The cowboys have mortgaged their souls on me."

"He was making a play for that little doll—"

"Don't you call Miss Blake a doll, Larry! I won't stand for it!"

"Well, skirt, then."

"Why don't you cut it? There's a train East at midnight."

"And leave Helen—like that? Her faith in me has weakened already; she'd hate me if I did that. No! I've got to face it out!"

"They'll be singing hymns for both of us," predicted the fat man.

"I don't care. They can bolt me in oil—I won't let her think I'm a coward."

"Larry doesn't have to stay."

"Of course not. He can escape."

"Not a chance," said the trainer.

"They watch me closer 'n they do him."

Covington considered for a moment. "It certainly looks bad, but perhaps the other fellow can't run either. Who is he?"

"A cook named Skinner."

"Happy hummel! Well, two-thirds of a sprint is in the start. How does Wally get in motion, Lawrence?"

"Like a sacred ox." Glass could not conceal his contempt.

"I'll give him some pointers; it will all help." But Speed was nervous and awkward—so awkward, in fact, that the coach finally gave it up as a bad job, saying:

"It's no use, Wally, you've got foot-leet."

"I have, eh? Well, I didn't break them getting out of jail."

"The less said about that jail the better. I'm in trouble myself."

Speed might have explained that his chum's dilemma was by no means so serious as he imagined, had not watchman Willie thrust his head through the open window at that moment with the remark:

"Time to get busy!"

"We'll be right with you!" Glass seized his protégé by the arm and bore him away, muttering: "Stick it out, brother, we're nearin' the end!"

Again Speed donned his running-suit and took to the road for his farewell practice. Again Willie followed at a distance on horseback, watching the hills warily. But all hope had fled from the Yale man now, and he returned to his training-quarters disheartened, resigned.

He was not resigned, however, to the visit he received later from Miss Helen Blake. That young lady rushed in upon him like a miniature cyclone, sweeping him off his feet by the fury of her denunciation, allowing him no opportunity to speak, until, with a half-sob, she demanded:

"Why—why did you deceive me?"

"I love you!" Wally said, as if no further explanation were necessary.

"That explains nothing. You made sport of me! You couldn't love me and do that!"

"Helen!"

"I thought you were so fine, so strong, but you lied—yes, that is what you did. You fished to me the first day I met you, and you've been fibbing ever since. I could never, never care for a man who would do that."

"Who has told you these things?"

"Roberta, for one. She opened my eyes to your—baselessness."

"Well, Roberta has a grudge against my sex. She's engaged to all the men she hasn't already married. Marriage is a habit with her. It has made her suspicious."

"But you did deceive me, didn't you?"

"Will you marry me?" asked J. Wallingford Speed.

"The idiot!" Miss Blake gasped.

"Will you?"

"I Love You!" Wally Said.

"Please don't speak that way. When a man cares for a woman, he doesn't deceive her—he tells her everything. You told me you were a great runner, and I believed you. I'll never believe you again. Of course, I shall behave to you in a perfectly friendly manner, but underneath the surface I shall be consumed with indignation." Miss Blake commenced to be consumed.

"See! You don't acknowledge your perjury even now."

"What's the next if I said I couldn't run, and then beat the cook, you'd believe I deceived you again. And suppose that I can't beat him?"

"Then I shall know they have told me the truth."

"And if, on the other hand, I should win—Miss Blake's eyes fell—"Helen, would you marry me?" Speed started toward her, but she had fled out into the twilight.

Dusk was settling over stretches of purple land, and already the room was peopled by shadows. Work was over; there were sounds of cheerful preparations for supper; from the house came faint choruses of laughter.

It was the hush that precedes the evening as it does the dawn; the hour of reverie, in which all music is sweet, and forgotten fears arise to haunt.

Speed stood where the girl had left him, miserable, hopeless, helpless. And certainly his love was lost. He had stayed on in the stubborn superstitious belief that something would surely happen to relieve him from his predicament—fortune had never failed him before—and instead, every day, every incident, had served to involve him deeper. Now she knew! It was her golden heart that had held her true thus far, but could any devotion survive the sight of humiliation such as he would suffer on the morrow? Already he heard the triumphant jeers of the Centipede henchmen, the angry clamor of the Flying Heart, the mocking laughter of his rival.

He groaned aloud. Forsooth, a broken toe! Of all the countless tens of thousands of toes in Christendom, the one he had hung his salvation upon had proven weaker than a reed.

What cruel jest of Fate was this? If Fate had wished to break a toe why had she not selected, out of all the billions at her disposal, that of some other athlete than Culver Covington—even his own.

J. Wallingford Speed started suddenly and pealed. He had remembered that no one could force a crippled man to run.

"By Jove," he exclaimed, "I'll do it!"

He crossed the hall, unlocked the back-door and looked in. The room was empty. The supper-bell pealed, and he heard the cow-man answer it. Now was the appointed moment; he might have no other. With cat-like tread he slipped into the sleeping-quarters, returning in a moment with a revolver, which he snatched up and the weapon—better this than dishonor.

"Why didn't I think of it before? It's perfectly simple. I'll accidentally shoot myself—in the foot!"

But even as he gazed at the gun he saw that the muzzle was as large as a copper-hole. A bullet of that size would sink a ship, he meditated in a panic, and as he thought what frightful execution it would work! But—it was better this than dishonor.

of the weapon pointing directly at his instep. He altered his aim hurriedly, when, without warning of any sort, a man's figure appeared silhouetted against the window.

The figure dropped noiselessly to the floor inside the room, and cried, in a strange voice:

"Lock those doors! Quick!"

Flushing that it was no hallucination, Speed rose, calling out:

"Who are you?"

"The stranger darted across the room and bolted both doors, while the other felt a chill of apprehension at those sinister precautions. He grasped his revolver firmly while his heart thumped. The fellow's appearance was anything but reassuring; he was swarthy and sun-browned, his clothes were ragged, his overalls were patched; instead of a coat, he wore a loosely flapping vest over a black sateen shirt, long since rusted out to a nondescript brown.

"I've been trying to get to you for a week," announced the mysterious visitor hoarsely.

"What do you want? Who are you?" Skinner, cook for the Centipede.

"The man I race?"

"Not so loud." Skinner was straining for the faintest sound from the direction of the mess-house.

"I'll kill him!" exulted the Eastern lad. But the other forestalled a murder by running on rapidly:

"Listen, now! I'm a runner and I jobbed this gang last month; we're partners, see! He's got another race framed at Pocatello, and I want to make a get-away."

"Yes! yes! you needn't stay here—on my account."

"Now don't let's take any chances to-morrow, see? We've both got for the coin. What do you want to do—win or lose?" Skinner jumped back to the door and listened.

"What?"

"Don't stall! The stranger cried, impatiently. "Will I win or will you? What's it worth?" He clipped his words short, his eyes darted furtive glances here and there.

"Can I win?" gasped Speed.

"You can if there's enough in it for me. I'm broke, see? You bet five hundred, and we'll cut it two ways."

"I haven't that much with me."

"Borrow it. Don't be a boob. Meet me in Albuquerque Sunday, and we'll split them."

"Is that all I have to do?"

"Certainly. What's the matter with you, anyhow?" Skinner cast a suspicious glance at his companion.

"I guess I'm rattled—it's all so sudden."

The figure dropped noiselessly to the floor inside the room, and cried, in a strange voice:

"Lock those doors! Quick!"

Flushing that it was no hallucination, Speed rose, calling out:

"Who are you?"

"The stranger darted across the room and bolted both doors, while the other felt a chill of apprehension at those sinister precautions. He grasped his revolver firmly while his heart thumped. The fellow's appearance was anything but reassuring; he was swarthy and sun-browned, his clothes were ragged, his overalls were patched; instead of a coat, he wore a loosely flapping vest over a black sateen shirt, long since rusted out to a nondescript brown.

"I've been trying to get to you for a week," announced the mysterious visitor hoarsely.

At the Theatres.

THE SOISSON.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" TONIGHT.

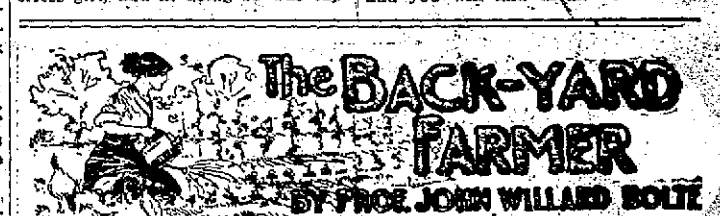

That old, old story, so new to present day theatregoers, of "slavery days" will be realistically interpreted at the Soisson Theatre this afternoon and tonight by Stetson's spectacular "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company. For this season, the members of the Stetson company were selected especially for his or her adaptability to the roles essayed. The result has been a rare, harmonious whole, it is claimed, which has done much to add to the effectiveness of the production. The scenery, painted especially for this revival, includes a number of handsome scenes reproduced from pictures of the localities mentioned in the book, as they were at the time when the great authoress first wrote the story, more than 50 years ago. Some of the most notable of these scenes are the "Sawney River" by moonlight, cotton fields in full bloom, the Ohio river in winter, and the escape of Eliza, carrying her child across the floating ice, the rocky pass in which George Harris made his stand against the men pursuing him and protected his family; the St. Clair plantation home, the levee at New Orleans showing a slave auction; Legree's plantation, and lastly, the beautiful transformation scene, showing Eliza's ascension to the Celestial City.

"THE LITTLEST REBEL."

Mr. Farnum will be seen at the Soisson theatre in Edward Peffer's thrilling war drama, "The Littlest Rebel," Saturday, matinee and night, March 29. The story is simple. It is about a southern scout who risked his life to see his little hungry and motherless girl, and in doing so was captured by Union soldiers.

The BACK-YARD FARMER

BY FRANK JOHN WILLARD BOLLE

Rhubarb.

How few rhubarb plants one sees growing and how nice that old-fashioned spring tonic is! Considering the fact that it costs practically nothing to plant it and the plants come up year after year, there is no reason why we should not all of us have all of the pieplant pie that we can eat every spring. Half a dozen hills will supply an average family.

Harvest time for rhubarb is the spring and early summer, but we frequently get a second crop in the fall.

Sandy loam is best for this plant, but it will grow well in any rich, warm, moist soil. You cannot get the soil too rich for rhubarb, and it does not stand drought very well.

Do not try to grow the plants from seed if you can secure root cuttings from a good, strong old hill. Each cutting should have two buds or eyes. Plant them in rows three feet apart, with the eyes an inch below the surface. They will begin to grow at once and, if planted early, a few stalks can be pulled the first year.

As fast as seed stalks appear cut them off. If very fine, large stalks are wanted, and why not have the best, thin out all but the center buds, so that the entire strength of the plant will feed these.

After the leaves are out back by frost in the fall cover the plants with four-inches of straw or sawdust. This prevents freezing and makes the next year's crop earlier.

While the plants will start early at the same time the leaves will not push through until after danger of spring frosts is past, hence it should not be removed too soon. Many commercial growers keep the soil covered with straw the year round in order to keep weeds down and hold moisture without cultivation. Cover the plants in the winter any way. It will avoid disappointment and increase the plant food.

Every three or four years it is advisable to dig up the plants, divide them and replant in another spot. If this is not done, the plants run out and the stalks grow small and pithy. Division and a new location start them off again as good as new.

Any surplus can always be sold in the spring at a good price as we seem to have a natural craving for the fresh green acid qualities of this old-time "pie fruit." Eat lots of it. Eat it raw and cooked, in pies and out of pies, put up all you cannot eat and save it for winter, but grow it yourself if you have a two by four patch of ground where the sun shines. It costs nothing to raise and it tastes lots better when it comes out of your own patch. And, furthermore, it is a much better spring tonic than sulphur and molasses, or sassafras.

10,000 TONS COKE SOLD ON CONTRACT AT $2.25 PER TON

But One Seller Does Not Necessarily Make the Market.

MAJORITY HOLD FAST FOR $2.50

Consumers are sounding the Market
For Second Half Prices, but Contractors are Not Being Moved. Present
Coke Selling at $2.50; Pig Iron Prices

From The Weekly Courier.
PITTSBURGH, March 25.—A seven-land furnace company has contracted for 5,000 tons monthly, April to June inclusive, of standard Connelville furnace coke of good grade, at $2.25 over. This is the first regular contract reported for furnace coke for several weeks, and gives an idea of the state of the market at the moment, though it seems certain that there are few sellers at this figure. The general idea in the trade on contract coke lately seems to have been about $2.50, but in a dull market it is always likely that buyers or another will take a much lower price than the majority of sellers would consider.
The contract market now seems quotable at $2.25 to $2.50, against $2.50 named in these reports for several weeks as the nominal market.
There is little if any contracting to be done by the furnaces now operating for delivery up to July 1, as all the going furnaces contract quite fully some time ago. Idle furnaces may decide to get into blast and make contracts, but there seems to be no immediate prospect of this, the pig iron market being very quiet, though stocks in the Pittsburgh-Valley district are reported as decreasing fairly.

For the second half of the year, on the other hand, there is a great deal of contracting to be done. On account of high prices, many consumers covered only for the present half, but instead of for the year, and as Con-nelville there is likely to be added demand on account of furnaces having contracted for outside coke for this half year, but being likely to sound the Connelville market with a view of setting back to Connelville coke. There is some inquiry now for steel, but the buyers do not seem to be near the closing stage, and are probably only sounding the market in order to keep posted against the time when they will be forced to buy.

According to all reports deliveries of Connelville coke on contracts are at record rate, but despite the heavy production on the one hand and the heavy consumption on the other there is very little doing marketwise or prompt coke. There is practically no surplus coke of standard grade being pressed on the market, while on the other hand there is very little present demand for prompt coke from consumers. The largest regular sale of prompt coke in the past week was a lot of 1,000 tons, which went at $2.45, $2.50 being the usual asking price. It is rumored that $2.60 was paid on a lot of 2,000 tons, but if the transaction occurred, special conditions doubtless existed. Otherwise sales in the week have been confined to a few car loads at a time.
Off-grade coke continues to be offered very freely, and while off in grade it is much better than a great deal of the coke which was willingly accepted by consumers in December and January, when all coke looked very much alike. A coke running not over 1.25% in sulphur, and otherwise quite satisfactory, is offered freely at about $2.15, with no sales reported. (Coke farther off does not get in the questioning stage at all and its manufacture is much reduced.)

The market stands quotable as follows:
Prompt furnace $2.45 to $2.50
Contract furnace $2.25 to $2.50
Prompt foundry $3.25 to $3.50
Contract foundry $3.25 to $3.50

Quotations named above are for strictly standard grades. In the case of foundry coke, only especially favorable brands would command near the top prices quoted.

The Mahoning and Shunko Valleys have been having record floods, which have closed many steel-making and steel-finishing mills, but the blast furnaces are not seriously affected. The mills closed will hardly be able to resume before next week, and pig iron production may be slightly affected.

The local pig iron market remains quiet, but the belief continues that some of the large steel works will soon have to buy merchant iron. The market on Bessemer and Blast is fairly strong, despite the continued quietness. Bessemer is quotable 35 cents lower, however, at $17. Valley, there having been a few sales at this figure, while Blast has sold, in the past week at 10 cents less than last quotation, a Pittsburgh steel mill having bought 7,500 tons of third quarter iron at about this price. Foundry iron is quotable at $18.25, Valley, a decline of 25 cents from last week, and of $1.75 from the high price ruling for a short time in December.

It is believed that merchant furnace stocks of pig iron in the Pittsburgh and Valley districts have been decreasing, though in the South and East they are understood to have increased.

WELCOME NEWS FOR CONNELLSVILLE PEOPLE.

Connellsville people who have stopped and bowed their heads will be glad to hear that the mixture of simple "blackberry bark, elderberry, etc., known as Adler's, can be obtained at P.

WRIGHT-METZLER'S—SILK CENTER OF THE COUNTY

A SALE of the Wanted New SILKS and A SALE of DEPENDABLE NOTIONS

Long-ahead planning, capturing special lots—in most instances direct from the manufacturer—and not sticking at quantity where quantity meant the lowest price—for these and other reasons we think this sale offers the greatest values in SILKS and NOTIONS that the dry goods store ever had. Home sewers and dressmakers should be mightily interested: The sale befits the reputation of the store.

SILKS, This Season, Form Their Own Special COURT of BEAUTY

COLOR is the first and last word in women's clothes—Color that fairly glows, that reminds one of burning skies and blazing jewels and the Orient generally. And what but SILK, soft and shimmering, could interpret the tones so beautiful and so unusual and never seen in previous years. Spring, 1913, will be a silk season without a parallel!
The extreme simplicity in the lines and draperies of modish gowns calls for the use of exquisite, clinging silks—silks with subtle touches of vivid colors introduced among soft yellows and blues, carrying out the Bulgarian idea; and silks plain, striped, brocaded or with neat checks. In this Court of Beauty you will see the best staple sorts made in America; and exclusive novelties from across the Atlantic. Also, the newest trimmings, buttons and ornaments.

$1.25 and $1 Messalines, 35
and 36 in. wide, many patterns 79c

Blue-and-white checks of various sizes; single and double stripes of different widths—straight or broken—green, blue, red, gold or white on black;
Brown, blue and red brocades.

White stripes on blue, red
